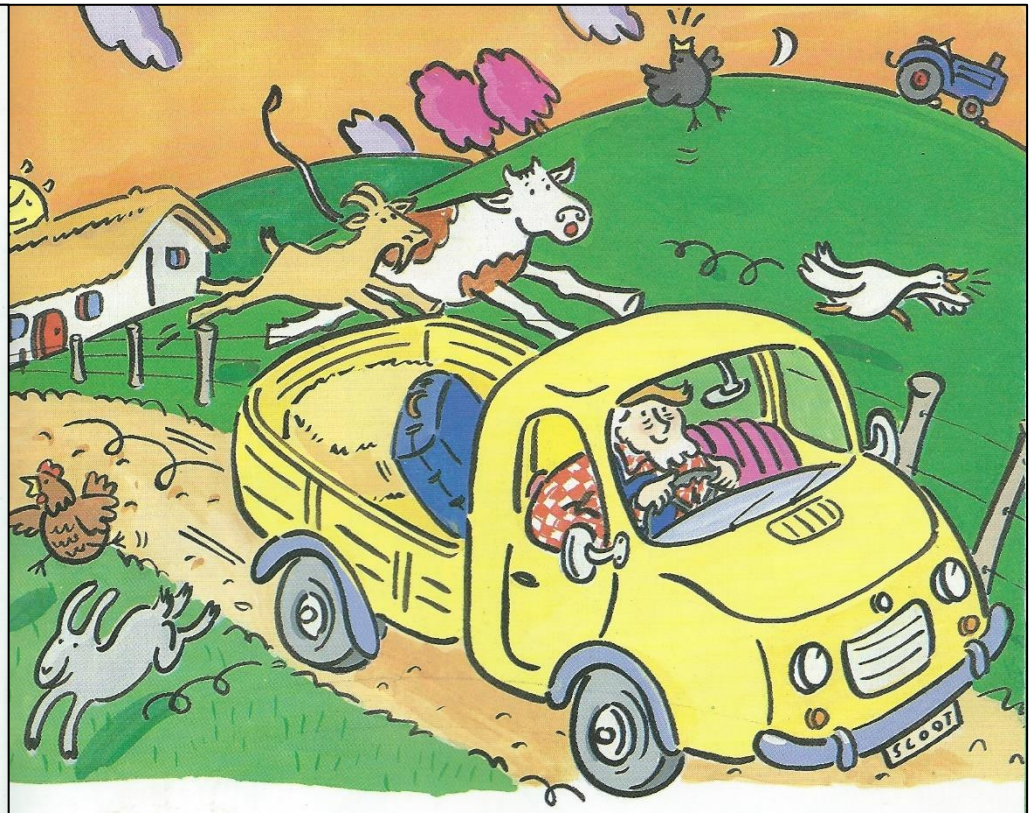
Old MacDonald

"I want to sleep," said Old MacDonald.
"Go away and let me sleep."

Did the animals go away?
No, they did not.

The goat said, "Ma-a-a!"
The duck said, "Quack! Quack!"
The cow said, "Moo-oo! Moo-oo!"



Old MacDonald said, "I can't sleep here, but I know what I can do. I'm going to the city."

The animals saw Old MacDonald go away in his car.

"Ma-a-a! Ma-a-a!" said the goat.
"Quack! Quack!" said the duck.
"Moo-oo! Moo-oo!" said the cow.

Away went Old MacDonald.
"I want to see the new buildings," he said.
"I will walk up and down the streets.
And I will walk in the park.
I'm going to sleep in the city, too."

Old MacDonald saw some new buildings.
He walked up and down the streets, and he walked in the park.
"Now I want to sleep," said Old MacDonald.
"My animals can't stop me from sleeping in the city."

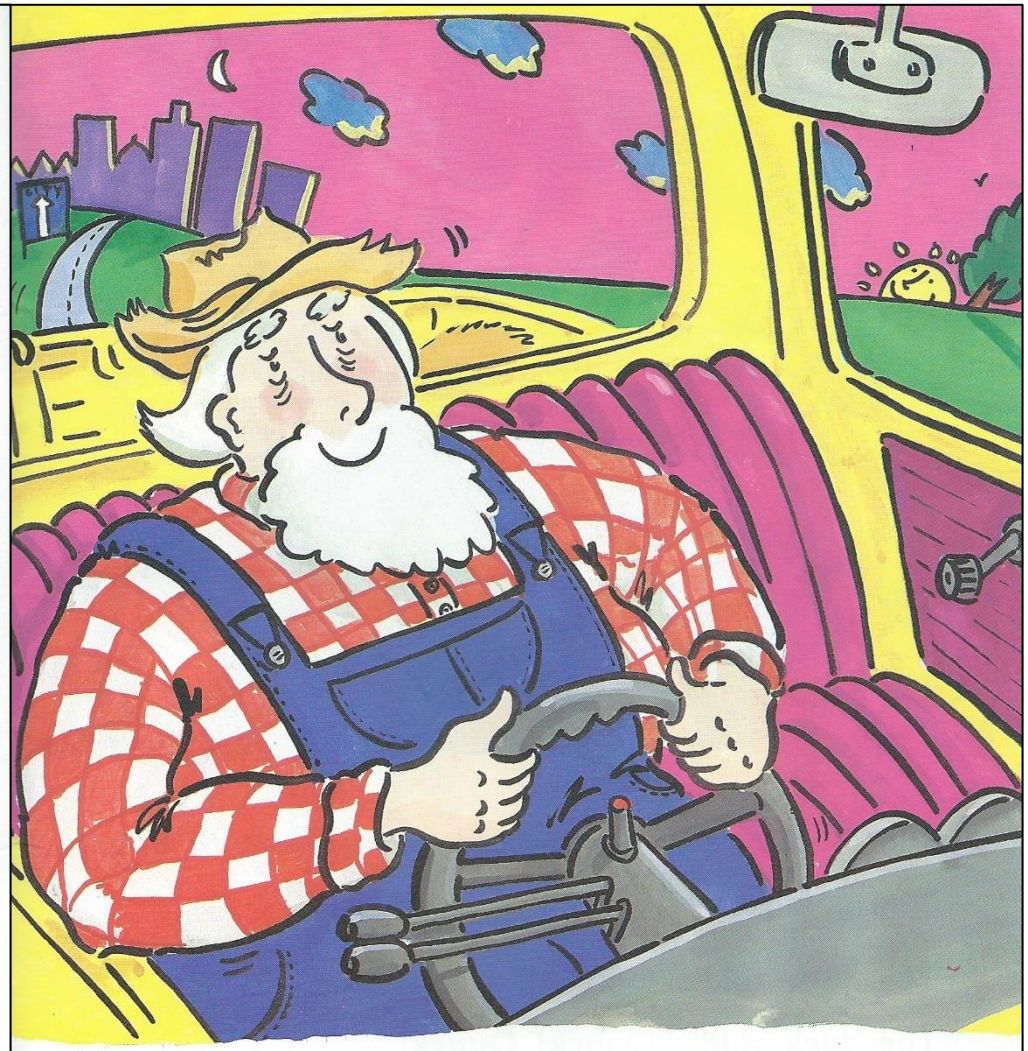
Did Old MacDonald go to sleep?

No, he did not.

"Who can sleep in this city?" he asked. "I can't!

Not with cars going up and down the streets.

The cars come and go, and they don't stop."



Old MacDonald said, "I'm going home.

I will get my car and go now."

He walked down the street, and away he went.

Old MacDonald went home and he went to bed.

"I'm going to sleep," he said. "Now!"

The goat said, "Ma-a-a!"

The duck said, "Quack! Quack!"

The cow said, "Moo-oo! Moo-oo!"

Did Old MacDonald get up? No, he did not.

He was so tired that he went to sleep.
